

Marni Nixon is the Visiting Artist in Music for Fall 2007 at Eugene Lang College. She is the uncredited but now quite renowned "voice behind the stars" in some major Hollywood musicals, including "West Side Story," "The King and I," & "My Fair Lady." The exhibition will focus on Marni's extensive career in cinema, theater & music, displaying original photos, scores, letters, posters & articles about her and the characters she impersonated through her voice. On the same night, Marni Nixon will talk about her career as a professional singer, and especially about dubbing the singing voices for Natalie Wood, Audrey Hepburn, & other actors we think we're hearing in many classic films. Marni's presentation will be on Thursday, September 27, from 6 - 8pm in Wollman Hall. it is free & open to all.
